

We distribute products via salespersons employs a traditional and direct approach to reaching consumers. In this model, the company hires a team of salespeople who are responsible for promoting and selling the company's products to potential customers. We take the salesperson information such as name, id, email and phone number. Each salesperson having their own inventory to keep track on their sales record ensuring the salesperson's inventory is updated and sales are tracked effectively.